Re-Elect

Wayne Bokenfohr Councillor | Division 3 Sturgeon County

Vast business experience in:

- Gravel Extraction & Reclamation
- Land Development & Road Building
- International Trade

Championing Rural Broad Band/High-Speed Internet

This councillor recognizes the need for all County residents to be able to access high-speed Internet service as a necessity.

Sturgeon County still has the highest development permit fee for tower installation in the province at $1,000, which hinders growth in a vital utility. I'm the first Sturgeon County elected official in 99 years to be appointed to the Federation of Canadian Municipalities on six national boards and committees for FCM. FCM represents 2000 elected officials.

A County With Opportunity

Sturgeon County needs a business-oriented Council if it wants to benefit from the spinoffs of the upcoming North West Sturgeon Refinery.

What I've heard from local businesses is that they are having a difficult time with the County's administration thereby making it harder for their business to move forward.

I think it is time we started acting at being more pro-development and started running the County like a business rather than the small rural municipality it has been in the past.

I pledge to work with all members of Council and we need to build consensus.

Your Tax Dollars

I am committed to look at how we're spending your tax dollars if re-elected.

I will push for an overall review and look at an incentive plan to encourage departments to come in under budget.

We also have the ability to provide lower taxes based on revenue from our industrial growth. I support a tax reduction to Sturgeon ratepayers. This reduction should be based on an overall assessment coming from industrial growth.

County Relationships & Growth

Sturgeon County should be able to plan for our future and control our own destiny.

As is stands, the City of Edmonton has too much control through the Capital Region Board, and the Board has placed too many restrictions on land development. We need a stronger voice.
